

2022 – 23 Call for International Programs (academic programs)

The Center for International Studies is pleased to announce the Call for 2022-23 international “credit earning” programs. We invite you to submit a brief proposal indicating your interest in leading a credit-earning program. In the coming months, the Center for International Studies will build a study abroad portfolio that aligns with student interest and academic needs, with consideration of current health and safety concerns.

We are excited to work with you to develop, plan, and implement your international program and activities. The Center for International Studies will facilitate program development, student recruitment, legal and compliance issues, and financial administration and oversight. You will be responsible for designing the academic experience, delivering the course content, and managing student issues while abroad.

For Maymester/Summer 2023, we will offer two options for academic international programs:

Option 1: Summer of Discovery

We are excited to offer Summer of Discovery: Italy for the third summer. This option includes increased provider support and a Global Perspectives Seminar at the start of your program.

Program Planning: We invite you to work in partnership with Accent, our educational partner in Italy, to apply your expertise to their curated programs. This unique approach allows faculty to design curriculum while Accent and CIS take the lead on logistics, program administration, and health and safety on the ground. Accent’s programs are rich in on-site learning with local faculty experts, applied learning experiences, and unique guided site-visits. Faculty may prefer this option as Accent will assume an increased role in program development and student management. Submit the Program Interest Form (p. 3) indicating your interest in the Summer of Discovery option

Global Perspectives Seminar: As part of our commitment to Global Learning, CIS will sponsor a three-day workshop at the start of Summer of Discovery programs. This program is curated and delivered by Accent Global Learning and intended to provide students and program leaders skills to enrich their experience abroad. All students receive a scholarship that covers the cost of the Global Perspectives Seminar.

Option 2: Faculty-led programs

Faculty may also propose an academic international program of their own design by submitting the Program Interest Form (p. 3). For a variety of reasons, locations may be limited and programs will generally be administered using international education providers to provide elevated support for academic continuity, emergency response, and health and safety protocols. We invite you to begin the conversation with us by submitting your form (p. 3).

Upon receiving the Program Interest Form, we will begin reviewing and building our portfolio of programs. Student application process for summer 2023 will begin in October.

Program Leader Compensation: For 2022-23, compensation is as follows (per program leader, based on 3 credit hours, two program leaders). Note that total compensation has two components: (1) classroom instruction and (2) stipend for providing 24/7 student support and non-classroom attention.

Faculty/Staff Type	Enrollment	Classroom Instruction	Stipend for 24/7 and non-classroom attention
